

I Fill in a suitable relative pronoun / adverb : only if necessary!

- 1 The last thing I want to know just now is your grade in maths.
- 2 Only my brother, has seen the monster with his own eyes, can describe it.
- 3 Is this the woman daughter is my best friend?
- 4 The woman is going to marry John was my neighbour once.
- 5 There is not much you can do about it.
- 6 The book you are reading was written by a famous American author.
- 7 This is a person type of character is very hard to tell.
- 8 There are a lot of murders the author(s) are never found.
- 9 The "Föhn" is a type of windbrings about a lot of headaches.
- 10 The place we usually go on holiday is absolutely gorgeous.
- 11 The reason he killed that woman was never known.
- 12 This is Mr Ford, the elder of daughters won a film award last year.
- 13 This is a valley at the bottom you find a beautiful river with crystal clear water.
- 14 George Washington is the president picture is on a one-dollar bill.
- 15 Have you seen the movie is playing at the ABC.
- 16 Students have part-time jobs have to budget their time carefully.
- 17 At a time so many serious problems remain to be solved it is difficult not to worry.
- 18 I would like an explanation you did not come yesterday.
- 19 Let me introduce you to Mrs Jones, in house you are going to live now.
- 20 Shakespeare, most of admirers fail to really understand him, was a simple man.

II. Make one sentence out of two, using relative clauses :

- 1 Do you know the woman? She is standing over there.
.....
- 2 The movie was good. I saw it yesterday.
.....
- 3 Do you know Sally? Her brother goes to school with me.
.....
- 4 Davos is a great skiing resort. I have been spending my winter holidays there for years.
.....
- 5 The woman was nice. You introduced me to her two days ago.
.....
- 6 These people are extremely friendly. We met their friends last year.
.....
- 7 This is Mr Smith. A friend of his son has sold me his motorbike.
.....
- 8 How tall was the man? You were telling me about him.
.....
- 9 Work is a drug. A workoholic cannot do without it.
.....

10 This was the dish. We had asked the waiter for it.

.....

11 Is this the pen? You wrote that letter with it.

.....

12 That is Mr Taylor. The uncle of his best friends is my biology teacher.

.....

b) Write correct sentences: "whoever, whatever, wherever, whichever "
one sentence each:

1

2

3

4

c) Translate: Kauf kein Auto, dessen Besitzer du nicht persönlich kennst . Nimm auch von niemandem, dessen Identität du nicht kennst, Reisegepäck an. Macht nicht einfach was man euch sagt.

II. Fill in "who, which, that, whose, what, where, why or nothing at all"

INSERT COMMAS WHERE NECESSARY!

The tennis game I watched last night was really exciting made me think I should play more again myself. I wondered would like to play with me today, and the address was of that tennis club president lived next door?

By the way, I remember my neighbour saying tennis was a game you either loved or hated, but had made its way up to an extremely high international level it was impossible not to see its qualities. In point of fact, my neighbour is a fine man has also a lot of intrests apart from tennis , however, would be another story to tell.

Anyway, a man has so many interests will never be bored, he will always know to do and to go is something not all people can say about themselves, if you know I mean.

..... idea was it originally to play tennis, you might wonder. Well, everybody knows the French were known to be very polite in the nineteenth century. It was indeed the French played a game like the one we call "tennis" today. However, to know the game originally came from does still not explain reason it is called "tennis" for. In fact, it is very simple: the French noblemen said when they hit the ball over to their partners was: "tenez" was very polite, of course, as we have said before. Now when the English are uncapable of pronouncing any language but English observed that game in France they happened to make war, they thought they heard was "tennis" was the word they took home. The French had invented the game, soon forgot it, and when it came back from England it was called "tennis" once and for all. Well, now you know thanks to bad pronunciation we play "tennis" and not "tenez".